Dear Dr. Forte,

We have completed the evaluation of your proposal, tentatively entitled "Indigenous Cosmopolitans: Transnational and Transcultural Indigeneity in the Twenty-First Century," and are happy to inform you that we would like to publish it as an independent volume. We would prefer that the final length of the manuscript not exceed 200 pages or about 90,000 words. We request that the version of the manuscript that is to be copyedited be sent to me here in our Bel Air, Maryland, office by 1 May 2008 or earlier.

As far as our offer is concerned, I propose the following: To begin, we would publish a first printing of five hundred thirty copies in paperback. Second, we are prepared to pay royalties of six percent on net receipts on the first 1,000 copies and eight percent of net receipts on all subsequent printings. The estimated book price is $29.95, provided that the book does not exceed 90,000 words or about 200 pages. You will receive 10 complimentary author's copies, and 35 will be set aside as review copies. Finally, we ask that you prepare the camera-ready copy according to our specifications. The camera-ready copy of the final manuscript should be submitted to the Production Department by 1 November 2008, or, if possible, earlier.

We are happy to make this offer to you, and we look forward to welcoming you to our publishing house.

Sincerely,

Heidi Burns, Ph.D.

Dear Max,

Enclosed please find our official offer to publish your manuscript, the publishing agreement, as well as the Acquiring Permissions form. Please review the materials, sign all three copies of the contract, and kindly return them to me in the enclosed self-addressed envelope. Please indicate when you return the contract whether permissions will be necessary for your book.

I look forward to be working with you on your book.

Cordially,

Heidi Burns, Ph.D.
